

SMALL BUSINESS CREDIT: A BANKER'S PERSPECTIVE

Area Lenders to Discuss Today's Small Business Lending Environment

One of the most common concerns of small businesses all over Indiana today is the ability to obtain a small business loan. Indiana lenders do have a desire to lend money to qualified borrowers, and it is to this end that the Indiana Economic Development Corporation is interested in fostering a conversation with area lenders to discuss today's small business lending environment. It is our belief that this dialogue will help restore confidence within the small business community and encourage Indiana's entrepreneurial spirit.

The Indiana Small Business Development Centers Network will host Small Business Credit: A Banker's Perspective forums across the state. The event will be a structured discussion comprised of questions from a moderator followed by questions from the audience. Attendees will have an opportunity to meet area lenders to discuss their small business credit needs at a networking session following the forum.

To attend a Small Business Credit: A Banker's Perspective forum, visit the Indiana Small Business Development Centers website @ www.isbdc.org and select ISBDC Locations tab, click on Select A New Location from the drop down box, and click on the Regional Map center location nearest you. The forum date, time, location and reservation details will be listed under Seminars. Check back often, as forums are currently being scheduled by the centers throughout the state.

The Indiana Small Business Development Centers Network brings you this unique opportunity to hear from and network with many area lenders, free of charge. The forums are open to all Hoosier small businesses, professional service providers, economic development professionals and the general public.
